Facts about the band:

Sirius Curse from the cosy town Rottweil in southern Germany was founded in August 2014. They did not start as beginners but as an independent band from the underground. In the first place it was not ambition that brought them together but the mere joy of making music.

Frank Würthner (guitar), Andreas Spitznagel (guitar) and Peter Hirsch (vocals) have already known each other from their former band Exterior (founded in 1986), who released their first album „Interior Silence“ in 1992. Dominikus Sautermeister (bass guitar) and Simon Wilde (drums) joined the band later and have completed the line-up since.

Four of the band members have a family and children, and all band members have professional lives, so they do not have plenty of time. Nevertheless the band has managed to attract interest among many festival and concert organisers – even without further released songs or an album to present their music.

Thus the debut album „Time Knows No Lies“ is a logical consequence and reflects the current status and abilities of the band. And of course, fans and supporters have always asked for a CD. The musical direction of Sirius Curse can be described with „Back To Heavy Metal Basics“. Their songs offer powerful and classic structures, supported by a technically varied and accentuated guitar play, which follows a straight and clear basslines and forceful drums. The progressive arrangements are rounded up by melodic and strong vocals gaining power by several voices.

The tracklist features eight songs which keep true to the genre and its intention. Mainly there are groovy songs which also have a certain unmistakable toughness, however, deep growls and guttural sounds will not be heard on the this album because the focus lies on catchy melodies and an independent modulation.

„Time Knows No Lies“ was planned and released within 2,5 years and solely on the band members` hands. Finally the album was mixed and mastered by Markus „Blacky“ Schwarz in the „Black-Keys-Studios“ in Rottweil. The CD layout and the design of the cover derive from Schrod – The PiXLpunishR.

Some additional remarks on the cover and title of the album:

The basic ideas derive from the band, the graphical realisation was possible with the help of Schrod – The PiXLpunishR.

In the centre is the hourglass, a symbol of ambivalence, either allowing a hopeful or melancholic view on time and the things that happen within. The sand that is trickling off like moments, time, and stations of human life, that pass irretrievably – if it is not for anybody who overturns the sandglass, gaining time before time will gain the upper hand again.

The streak of blood, a popular motive on many heavy metal covers, does not stand for human brutality and destruction but hints at the fugacity of life in general.

„Time knows no lies“ – the title of our album is an attempt to underline the thoughts above: Time knows no lies. Time does not have a conscience – it only has one function: To determine the ending and the beginning of something, not more and not less. What happens within of any time span does not bother time at all. Time does not care about our lies – even if time reveals them.
